DESTRUCTION OF THE FORESTS

TIME RAPIDLY APPROACHING
WHEN SOUTH WILL BE DE-
NUDED—AGRICULTURE THE FU-TURE BASES OF WEALTH.

Editor Pensacola Journal:

So much has been said and written at random in recent years concerning the destruction and preservation of forests that, at first thought, it would appear that nothing of any real significance to the American people, in this connection, remains unsaid. While there has appeared from time to time in various magazines and periodicals of the country, articles treating in a more or less scientific way the subjects of forest preservation and the reforestation of treeless lands, yet a great part of the discussion has been of a general rather than a specific nature.

It is not the purpose of this article to rehearse any of the current scientific theories of forest preservation, nor any theories that are not current as for that matter, but simply by means of a few scattering thoughts it is hoped to direct the attention of the readers of The Journal to some facts and observations, respecting the result of forest destruction, that may directly or indirectly relate to their future welfare and happiness.

Wealth of Timber.

In Western Florida and Southern Alabama there is a wealth of timber scarcely surpassed by any section of the United States, and yet there is a richness and opulence that lies beneath and beyond these forests, the real extent of which we can now form only a faint conception, namely: the wealth in agricultural products which this region may be made to yield. And while we would deplore the entire destruction of the forests, we would, nevertheless, hail with pleasure that era of agricultural prosperity which must follow.

Within the last few years the federal government has taken no little interest in forest preservation, and in the perpetuation, especially, of the yellow pine. A national forestry bureau has been established, eminent scientists have been employed and set to work upon the problems of forest destruction, universities have provided those set apart by congress, and have given special attention to dendrology. Cries against the axman and destroyer of the beautiful virgin forests have gone up from nature lovers in all parts of the country, and, yet, despite these facts, the axman continues to manufacture and to turn out the finished product.

It Must Continue.

It continues, it will continue, it must continue, for some time at least. Why? Because the lumber industry is the source of our support and the only means by which the people can subsist. Is this the reason? Not wholly. There is money in the lumber and turpentine industries and the owners of the trees, whether they be private individuals or corporations, have a legal and moral right to manufacture and to sell and they are going to do it. And, again, there is a large class of people, more or less trained in their respective lines of work, engaged in milling who could ill-afford to give up their positions for the lesser income which unscientific farming would necessarily yield. Moreover, milling plants, representing in their construction and equipment millions of dollars, could hardly be allowed to cease operation so long as there is timber to cut within profitable proximity to the plants.

Nature lovers may cry with vociferation and earnestness for the sparing of the forest; but there is little likelihood of any very large part of the forest being left untouched either for the purpose of preserving its scenic beauty or for the purpose of securing to posterity a share of the timber wealth we now enjoy; and at the present rate of timber consumption it is only a matter of time when the pine forests of West Florida and South Alabama—the section in which the readers of The Journal are perhaps most vitally interested—will be no more. Truly, the forests will be no more, so far as their present yield is concerned, and if we attempt to set the time limit we cannot safely place it at a greater distance than twenty years, for within twenty years the southern yellow pine will have ceased to be an important commercial commodity.

TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT

CASE OF RAILROADS AGAINST THE STATE OF FLORIDA
ARGUED BEFORE JUDGE
SWAYNE YESTERDAY.

The case of four railroads in Florida against the state, in which the former ask for a restraining order to prevent the enforcement of certain rates, was argued at length yesterday before Judge Chas. Swayne, of the United States court.

There were a large number of prominent attorneys present when the case was called. Among those representing the roads were John E. Hart, of the A. C. L.; W. A. Blount, of the L. & N.; Geo. P. Roney, of the S. A. L. and Duncan U. Fletcher, of the G. S. & F. Attorney General Ellis and N. P. Bryan, the latter of Jacksonville, represented the state in the proceedings.

The arguments consumed the entire day, and at the conclusion Judge Swayne announced that he would take the case under advisement, delivering his decision at a later date.

The Florida Railroad Commission recently issued a number of orders requiring railroads in the state to reduce the rate upon certain classes of freight, and the railroads are now seeking to enjoin the commission and prevent the enforcement of the order.

CURES OLD SORES.

Westmoreland, Kans., May 5, 1902. Ballard Snow Liniment Co.: Your Snow Liniment cured an old sore on the side of my chin that was supposed to be a cancer. The sore was stubborn and would not yield to treatment, until I tried Snow Liniment, which did the work in short order. My sister, Mrs. Sophia J. Carson, Allensville, Minn. Co., Pa., has a sore and mistrusts it is a cancer. Please send her a 50c bottle. Sold by all druggists. Cures croup, sore throat, pulmonary troubles—Monarch over pain of every sort. BULLETIN BOARD AT CUSTOM HOUSE FOR PROPOSALS.

Paymaster S. G. Pyne, of the navy yard, has just had placed in the custom house a very attractive bulletin board on which he will post from time to time proposals for bids for the various supplies used at the yard.

Paymaster Pyne says that a large part of these supplies can be purchased from Pensacola dealers and the latter can always keep posted as to what is wanted by referring to this bulletin board.

No need to fear sudden attack of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhea or summer complaint, if you have Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry in the medicine chest.

ent rate of timber consumption it is only a matter of time when the pine forests of West Florida and South Alabama—the section in which the readers of The Journal are perhaps most vitally interested—will be no more. Truly, the forests will be no more, so far as their present yield is concerned, and if we attempt to set the time limit we cannot safely place it at a greater distance than twenty years, for within twenty years the southern yellow pine will have ceased to be an important commercial commodity.

Yellow Pine Exports.

At present Pensacola is the largest exporter of yellow pine of all the southern seaports, figuring so conspicuously in this trade, the total number of superficial feet exported for the year 1903 about 337,415,577.

From these figures it is easy to see how a large part of the support of Pensacola, and the country round about, is supplied, directly or indirectly by the yellow pine; and since we have already pointed to the decline and final exhaustion of this source of wealth, it necessarily follows that in the not distant future those portions of our country now supported by the lumber industry must look to agriculture as the primary source of support.

Now if these statements and observations be true—if it be indeed true that in Western Florida the forest must soon give place to the farm—then in order to insure a continuous growth and uninterrupted prosperity for our very much favored region, it becomes the imperative duty of all citizens and patriots—lovers of the "Land of Flowers"—to institute and push forward some movement looking to the stimulation of a greater interest and activity in agriculture and to the education of the rising generations in its scientific principles and their practical application.

Agricultural Possibilities. With an abundant rainfall, an equable and semi-tropical climate, and a soil adapted to the growth of a great variety of plants, West Florida and the contiguous section of Alabama have possibilities in an agricultural way scarcely excelled—scarcely equalled—by any other section of our country; and to develop these resources however rich they may be, to their fullest extent, there must be the application of the trained hand of the scientific mind.

To the end that these results may be achieved, and as early as possible—to the end that we may initiate a movement that will some day in the not distant future make West Florida blossom in the fullness of its glory, let us introduce agriculture into the courses of study for our public schools and make it compulsory upon the part of teachers to teach it in all grades of the grammar school courses above the fifth. This would constitute the initiation of a scheme of industrial and technical education that would find its further development in the school garden and agricultural college.

The time is not far distant, I believe, when the school garden will form a necessary part of our equip-

Children will be introduced to the broad world of nature and put in sympathy with their surroundings; and contemporaneous with this advance will be the development of the artistic and love for the beautiful in the individual, all of which, taken together, will mean the conversion of ugly and straggling groves into parks of living beauty, and barren plains into gardens and fields of flowers and plants that will load the air with merry fragrances as they yield their fruits to comfort and support. TIMBER MUST BE DELIVERED

PARTIES CATCHING DRIFT TIM-BER MUST DELIVER IT TO THE CUSTODIAN.

Although it has been the custom in the past for parties catching drift timber in the bay to make whatever disposition they might see fit of the same, it will be the rule hereafter that all timber picked up must be delivered to the custodian, and there receive pay for the same. It has been the habit of parties running wood yards and other such places to catch drift timber and saw it up, instead of delivering it to the proper authorities. Of course they derive a greater benefit by thus doing so, but the law is not being complied with, and Custodian Britton, who has had legal advice upon the question, will hereafter put a stop to this procedure. If a stick of timber is caught in the bay it must be delivered to him and to no one else.

CONDITIONS OF THE WEATHER FOR JULY

DATA REGARDING THE COMING
MONTH COMPILED BY WEATH-ER BUREAU FOR A PERIOD OF TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

Observer W. F. Reed, Jr., of the local weather bureau, has compiled the following data, covering a period of 25 years, from the weather bureau records at Pensacola, Fla. They are issued to show the conditions that have prevailed, during the month in question, for the above period of years, but must not be construed as a forecast of the weather conditions for the coming month.

Temperature.—Mean or normal temperature, 81 deg. The warmest month was that of 1881, with an average of 83 deg. The coldest month was that of 1894, with an average of 79 deg. The highest temperature was 103 deg. on July 12, 1891. The lowest temperature was 64 deg. on July 6, 1882.

Precipitation (rain or melted snow).—Average for the month, 6.35 inches. Average number of days with .01 of an inch or more, 15. The greatest monthly precipitation was 13.68 inches in 1890. The least monthly precipitation was 2.01 inches in 1902. The greatest amount of precipitation recorded in any 24 consecutive hours was 5.01 inches on July 7, 1896.

Clouds and Weather.—Average number of clear days, 9; partly cloudy days 15; cloudy days, 7. Wind.—The prevailing winds have been from the southwest. The average hourly velocity of the wind is 8.2. The highest velocity of the wind was 72 miles from the north on July 7, 1896.

Scald head is an excema of the scalp—very severe sometimes, but it can be cured. Doan's Ointment, quick and permanent in its results. At any drug store, 50 cents.

RUNAWAY HORSE CAUSED A STIR

BROKE PLATE GLASS WINDOW IN STORE OF A. M. AVERY AND GALLOPED DOWN SIDE-WALK.

A horse, the property of Raymond Waters, caused considerable excitement on Palafox street early last night. Incidentally the animal caused some damage, inasmuch as it smashed the plate glass show window in the store of A. M. Avery.

Where the animal started from or where it intended going, is not known, but its flight ended abruptly near the Thiesen building, when it slipped and fell from the sidewalk, and was captured by a colored man.

The animal came from some point north of Avery's store and its evident intention was to keep in the middle of Palafox street. The rain caused the pavement to become slippery, however, and instead of doing so it went into the sidewalk, driving its head through the window. Later it went on a run down the pavement on the east side of Palafox street, and caused the creek fruit man to emit some very peculiar noises, as it passed on a gallop just as the fruit man was preparing to take a nap.

Continuing the animal passed another fruit stand, but the approach was seen by this fellow and he gave the horse the right of way, as did all others on that side of the street. In an effort to leave the sidewalk the horse slipped and fell, and its wild gallop was thus ended.

The animal was slightly injured, the head being cut by the glass and the body bruised by the fall.

$600 FOR COUNTY PREMIUMS.

That Amount for the Best County Exhibits. $50 for the Best Exhibit From one Farm.

At a meeting of the directors of the West Florida Fair Association, held Monday, the date of the fair was fixed at November 1st to 4th inclusive, and $600 was ordered appropriated for the payment of premiums for the best collective exhibits from the various Florida counties, divided into a first premium of $300, a second premium of $200 and a third premium of $100, which should set the progressive citizens of every county within reach to hustling, for outside of the money the fact that a county has won such a premium is well worth many times that amount.

$50 was ordered appropriated as first premium for the best collective exhibit from any one farm, with second premiums of $20 and $15 respectively, open to any one anywhere. The president was directed to appoint a board of five lady managers for that department, and their names will be announced soon. Everything is moving along nicely toward the big success the fair is sure to be, and names should be sent to the secretary, Mr. R. W. Stiggs, for copies of the premium list which will soon be out.—Defunak Breeze.

JULY FOURTH AT BAY VIEW PARK

A Stoddart Has Donated a Large
Flag to Be Raised on That Occasion.

The chairmen of the various committees which were appointed to prepare for the citizens Fourth of July picnic at Bay View Park are requested to meet at 9:30 this morning in H. H. Poyer's office in the Thiesen building. Definite plans will then be perfected for the big event and a full program will then be announced.

Big Flag Coming. A. V. Clubs yesterday received a telegram from Alexander Stoddart, of New York, saying that the latter had just sent by express a 20-foot flag which he donates to Bay View Park and which will be raised July 4th. The transportation committee is arranging to put on a line of hacks and conveyances from the car line to the park, so that no one will have to walk. Tomorrow a program will be announced in full.

Additional Committeemen. Additional members of the committee of reception and entertainment have been appointed. These are R. M. Robinson, John E. Stillman, Jas. C. Watson, A. D. Weller, Chas. E. Merritt, H. Lee Bell, John G. Caro, R. W. Sublett and A. M. McMillan.

In the forenoon a salute of forty-five guns will be fired, one gun being fired for each state in the union, and when the American flag is raised a salute of twenty-one guns will be fired.

The Sports.

The committee on sports has arranged the following program for the event: Climbing greasy pole—Prize, a pig. One mile (single skul) race—Gold medal. One hundred yards (swimming) race for men—One pair $5.00 shoes. One mile (double skul) race—One fine hat and one nice umbrella. Fifty yard (swimming) race for girls—$5.00 gold piece. One hundred yard (tub) race for men—One box fine cigars. Half mile (rowing) race for men—A cash prize, $5.00. Longest dive race for men—One bathing suit. Half mile double rowing race—Cash prize, $5.00. One making most graceful dive from spring board—One fine bathing suit.

ACUTE RHEUMATISM.

Deep tearing or wrenching pains, occasioned by getting wet through; worse when at rest or on first moving the limbs and in cold or damp weather, is cured quickly by Ballard's Snow Liniment. Oscar Oleson, Gibson City, Ill., writes, Feb. 16, 1902: "A year ago I was troubled with a pain in my back. It soon got so bad I could not bend over. One bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment cured me." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by all druggists.
